

Book Talk for “Secret in Stratford” by R. Fulleman

Have you ever liked somebody, you know, like them? But then you're not so sure they like you back? Well, I've traveled a long way to find out if my friend Ruth is really more than a friend and will be my girlfriend. I'm so confused. Maybe I should just start at the beginning. I met Ruth when I went to summer school in Romania, a country that's in eastern Europe. She was a student there too, and we hung out all the time and even had some pretty crazy adventures involving ghosts and a hidden treasure. I wasn't sure if we'd ever see each other again, but then my mom said she wanted to go to the Christmas markets in England. Those are shops on the streets during the holidays where there's lots of good food and fun shopping to do. Wow what a coincidence – Ruth is from England! So we made plans that we would go to the city called Stratford on Avon. That's the home of William Shakespeare, the famous guy who wrote plays back in the 1500s. So we went to this medieval town to see the Christmas markets there, learn some history, and mostly for me to see Ruth. Well I got a lot more than I expected as usual on these trips. Especially when my high school friends Katie and Cam show up. They really like to do ghost hunting, well maybe not Cam, but Katie sure does. So of course after they've arrived I start getting haunted by this ghost boy who must be something like 10 years old, I don't know. What would he have to do with me, my family, and more importantly, why does he want to kill me? Find out by reading...
